Location:

The site is located on the B9002, approximately 1 mile west of its junction with the A96 to the west of the village of Oyne in Aberdeenshire.

Oyne is a principal commuter village for Inverurie and Aberdeen being 8 and 24 miles distant respectively. Oyne has a population of 300 people. The village benefits from a primary school and nearby Insch provides further amenities along with the railway station on the Aberdeen to Inverness main line.

Description:

The site comprises the former Archaeolink Prehistoric visitor centre and adjacent car parking. The site is to be split into two separate lots with a combined area of 5.35 hectares (13.21 acres).

The visitor centre has a gross internal area of approximately 1,161 sq m (12,500 sq ft). The single storey building is constructed from a reinforced concrete frame with reinforced concrete slab roof. The building itself has been covered in stabilised aggregate and earth mound, with several light wells allowing for natural light. There is a large glazed section to the western part of the building allowing for further natural light. Internally, the building has been sectioned through the use of plasterboard walls. The property would lend itself well to a multitude of uses.

Rateable Value:

We are advised that Archaeolink is currently entered into the Valuation Roll, and effective from 1 April 2021 as follows:

NAV/RV: £30,000

It should be noted that the property has been assessed as an Interpretive Centre and any occupier has the right to appeal this valuation within the first 6 months of occupation.

Planning:

The site is identified in the Proposed 2016 Aberdeenshire Local Development Plan as an opportunity site for sensitive redevelopment of up to 10 homes, including a minimum of 2 affordable houses. The former Archaeolink building is safeguarded for employment purposes within the Proposed 2016 Local Development Plan.

The subjects are to be sold on the basis of all burdens and servitudes and rights in the title otherwise affecting the property.

Any interested parties should make enquires on planning matters to Aberdeenshire Council.

Energy Performance Certificate (EPC)

The former Archaeolink Prehistoric visitor centre has an EPC of F+

A copy of the EPC and the Recommendation Report can be provided upon request.
